Holiday Retail Campaign — Advent + December 12

Four-email sequence for the retail customer list, spread from early November to the start of December. Sends past buyers and newsletter subscribers to the new /gifts landing page.

Segment target: anyone in your OpenMoves list who is NOT a parish/school (parishes get a different sequence). If you don't have prior-buyer segmentation yet, one blast to everyone is fine — the copy reads for both prospects and past customers.

Send window: Nov 4 → Dec 3, four sends. Skip the first email if you're kicking this off after Nov 4.

Deadlines are worked back from real fulfilment: five to ten business days before an order leaves us, plus carrier transit in the month carriers are worst. A canvas for December 12 has to be ordered in November, not in December.

Personalization variables

Same base as the parish campaigns, minus the parish-specific fields:

Variable	Example
@firstname	Elena
@city	San Antonio
@state	TX

Optional, if you have prior-buyer data:

Variable	Example
@lastorderyear	2024
@lastordersku	24”×36” Gold Frame

Email 1 — “Order by November 20 for December 12”

Send: Wednesday, Nov 4 (mid-morning, Eastern)

Subject: Order by Nov 20 for December 12 delivery

Preview text: The Guadalupe canvas gift guide is up. Framed, rolled, and gallery wrap — from $57.

Body:

Dear @firstname,

Two devotional dates are coming up faster than you’d think.

- December 12 — the feast of Our Lady of Guadalupe
- December 3–11 — the traditional Novena leading into it

If you’re planning to give the tilma canvas as a gift for the feast, or to have it on your own wall for the Novena, order in November. Each canvas is printed and then framed or rolled for that order, which takes five to ten business days before it even reaches the carrier.

- December 12 feast — order by November 20, or by November 13 for a rolled canvas you still have to stretch or frame
- Christmas — order by December 4
- Three Kings Day — order by December 16

The full gift guide is up:

Eight SKUs, from a $57 gallery wrap to a $324 large rolled canvas, with five framed 24”×36” options in the middle at $214. The image comes from a digital archive of the Sacred Original, certified in Mexico in 1998 as a faithful reproduction, and both certifications ship with every order. You don’t have to take that on trust: we publish both certificates in full, alongside crops of the face, the stars and the weave cut from the actual print file at full size. Canvases are printed in the USA on archival stock. Free U.S. shipping, 30 days to return.

Thanks, Peace Bill

Email 2 — Gift-guide push, before the deadline

Send: Monday, Nov 16 (morning, Eastern)

Subject: For the person who already has “everything Guadalupe”

Preview text: Three price bands, six recipients, one image. Four days left to order for the feast.

Body:

Dear @firstname,

No discount code. No manufactured panic. Just a real deadline: November 20.

Just this: the image comes from a digital archive of the Sacred Original, certified in Mexico in 1998 as a faithful reproduction, and both certificates are published in full. The canvas is printed in the USA on archival stock at 287.5 pixels per inch, and it lasts. The 24”×36” framed at $214 is the piece most people give — ready to hang the moment it’s unwrapped, five frame styles to match the recipient’s home.

Not sure which size? The size guide gives the viewing distance and hanging height for each one, which is usually what settles it.

Some ideas for who to give it to:

- Grandparents or parents with roots in Mexico or Latin America
- A newlywed couple’s first apartment (the $57 gallery wrap fits any wall)
- A godchild at confirmation
- A pastor’s rectory or a religious sister’s cell
- The family member who hosts the Dec 12 celebration every year

Order by Nov 20 for December 12 delivery.

Thanks, Peace Bill

Email 3 — Novena reminder

Send: Wednesday, Dec 2 (morning, Eastern — day before the Novena begins)

Subject: The Novena starts tomorrow

Preview text: Nine days of prayer for the four apparitions, leading into the December 12 feast. A short read on the story if you're new to it.

Body:

Dear @firstname,

Tomorrow — Thursday, December 3 — the traditional Novena to Our Lady of Guadalupe begins. Nine days of prayer, one for each of the four apparitions to Juan Diego and the one to Juan Bernardino, leading into the feast day on December 12.

If you'd like a short read on the apparition itself — what actually happened at Tepeyac in 1531, what the roses on the frozen hilltop meant — we published a piece on the site:

A canvas ordered now will not reach you before the feast, but it will arrive well inside the Jubilee year, and there is still time for Christmas if you order by Friday, December 4:

Thanks, Peace Bill

Email 4 — Last call for Christmas

Send: Thursday, Dec 3 (morning, Eastern — the last order date for Christmas)

Subject: Last call for Christmas delivery

Preview text: December 4 is the last order date for Christmas.

Body:

Dear @firstname,

Short one.

December 12 has passed as an order date: a canvas ordered now cannot be printed, framed and carried to you before the feast on Saturday, December 12, and we would rather say so than take the order and disappoint you.

Christmas is still open, but today is the last day. Order by tomorrow, Friday, December 4, and a canvas gets there. After that, Three Kings Day on January 6, with December 16 as the last order date.

The Jubilee Year for Our Lady of Guadalupe that opened in Mexico City on October 12 runs a full year — through October 12, 2027. If the canvas doesn't get to you before December 12, it still lands in the middle of a Jubilee year of grace.

Order for Christmas →

Christmas order deadline is December 4. For Three Kings Day on January 6, order by December 16.

Thanks and a blessed Advent to you.

Peace Bill

Notes for future improvement

- Gift shipping to a different address: Stripe Checkout collects one shipping address per order. Customers giving a gift may want it shipped to the recipient — right now they use the “shipping different from billing” flow in Stripe Checkout. Works, but “Ship as a gift” copy on the /gifts page could make this clearer. Not blocking.
- Gift notes / gift wrap: neither is currently offered. If demand shows up in feedback, add a Stripe custom field for a gift note on the checkout. Not blocking.
- Segment past-buyers vs prospects: past buyers can get a slightly different Email 1 (“thanks for last year’s order, here’s what’s new”). Nothing has been segmented yet — flag if worth doing before send.
